Obituary.
COL. JAMES F. WYATT breathed his last on the 10th inst., at 10 o'clock and 45 minutes a. m. For nine weeks he had been painfully and unceasingly afflicted, during which time he had the constant attention of two practical physicians, as well as the unceasing vigilance of a devoted family, joined with the unceasing attention of kind neighbors, but all in vain. He is gone.
On Wednesday, 11th, his remains were carried into Pisgah Church, where he held membership, and at 3 o'clock p. m. a funeral sermon was delivered by Rev. T. R. Gary, from the text: "If a man die shall he live again." Job 14: 14. The sermon was earnest and appropriate, and listened to by a large congregation of relatives, friends, and neighbors, and if sectarian prejudice exists, it seemed to have been left behind on this occasion. For Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians all seemed by their deportment to say—"we have lost a brother." The religious services were concluded by a few words of exhortation and kind cheer to the bereaved family, by Rev. J. M. Pickens, and prayer by Rev. G. Carpenter; and then the corpse was consigned to the grave in the burying ground near by, there to rest until the last, loud trumpet shall announce that Time shall be no longer.
Thus passed away one of Carolina's noblest sons, in his 67th year. He was born May 1, 1801. Married in early life, and commenced a career of usefulness which terminated only with his life. In politics he was an appreciative voter—in the military he delighted, and early commenced a volunteer career, working up through the various grades of promotion until he honored the old 4th Regiment by being its Colonel. Afterwards, when he had become too aged to endure the hardships of active field duty, he joined the 42d Regiment, and served in the South. This position he held until his militia system became extinct.
But the best remains to be told. He was not only a patriot, and a gentleman, but a Christian. "The tree shall be known by its fruit." The hungry went not from his door empty; the sick found him at their bedside; those in grief found his sympathy; they that were at variance found in him a peace-maker. But the Judgment Day will open the book, and there the fruit will be seen. He pondered well before he acted; for though strictly moral, he never joined the Christian Church until 1860, when he was united with the Baptist Church at Pisgah, where he was a zealous and attentive member, and an officer in the church to the time of his decease.
Fully conscious of his approaching dissolution, he set his house in order. Not only did he bequeath his affection with Christian charity, but looked forward to the future welfare of his young companion, and having finished his course, he folded his hands over his heart, and passed away without a struggle. A community feels sensibly the loss; but if our loss be his eternal gain, then let us dry up our tears, and pray that we, too, may die the death of the Christian.

IN MEMORIAM OF AUSTIN WILLIAMS, DEC'D.
Only a few brief months have passed since the Session and Church of Williamson were called upon to lament the loss of him whose name heads up this brief notice. The deceased was born of reputable parents in the lower end of Greenville District, S. C., on the 21st of February, 1804. He died at his residence at Williamson, on the morning of September 9, 1867.
Mr. John Williams, the father of the deceased, was a native of South Carolina, and married Anna Wells, a native of this State also, where they settled down, and raised a large family of children, of whom the subject of this notice was the eldest son. He remained with his parents until he was grown, when he went out West, and was engaged for some time in peddling on dry goods through the States of Georgia and Alabama. He then returned home, and soon after was united in marriage with Mary Anderson, of Greenville District, S. C., and settled near his father's residence, where he resided until the year 1852, engaged in the vocation of farming, when he removed with his family to Williamson, Anderson District, S. C., and there spent the remainder of his days on earth. Not many years after his marriage, he was appointed Magistrate, the duties of which office he performed with credit and acceptance down to the time of his death. Being a sound reasoner, and a good judge of law, his decisions in important and complicated law cases were invariably sustained by the higher courts referred to them.
In 1843, he became a member of the Presbyterian Church at Fairview, in Greenville District, and with his family attended church regularly twice a month, riding the distance of twenty-two miles, there and back. His doors were always open to ministers of the gospel, of whatever name or order, many of whom have often shared his hospitality, and sheltered under his friendly roof in going to and from their appointments. But a short time after he was united with the church, he was elected and ordained as a Ruling Elder in the Fairview congregation. In 1852, he removed his membership to Broadway Church, in Anderson District, S. C., and was elected and installed as an Elder in that congregation. In 1852, the Presbyterian Church at Williamson was organized, (in a great measure through his influence,) of which he became one of the leading members, and he was again elected and set apart to the Eldership, in which capacity he continued to act faithfully and with promptness to the time of his death.
The deceased was a business man, in every sense of the word, of no ordinary talent, and was very useful in his sphere. In his death, the community and surrounding country have sustained an irreparable loss, which is deeply felt and lamented by all who knew him. He has left a disconsolate companion and four children, one of them a widowed daughter with two promising little boys, together with numerous relatives and friends to mourn his departure; but they mourn not as those without hope, having the blessed assurance "that all is well with him," and they hope to meet him in that better world above.
Whereas, Almighty God, in His infinite wisdom, hath seen fit to call from our midst our much beloved and esteemed brother, Austin Williams, Esq.; therefore Resolved, That the Session and Church of Williamson do deeply sympathize with the widow and family in their bereavement.
Resolved, That a page in our session book be dedicated to the memory of the deceased, and that the time of his birth and death be transcribed thereon.
Resolved, That the widow be presented with a copy of the above preamble and resolutions.
